

The Patient's Bill of Rights

The U.S. Advisory Commission on Consumer Protection and Quality in the Health Care Industry adopted the Consumer Bill of Rights and Responsibilities in 1998.

The Patient's Bill of Rights were created with the intent to reach three major goals:

1. To help patients feel more confident in the U.S. health care system.
 - a. The Bill of Rights:
 - i. Assures that the health care system is fair and it works to meet patient's needs.
 - ii. Gives patients a way to address any problems they may have.
 - iii. Encourages patients to take an active role in staying or getting healthy.
2. To stress the importance of a strong relationship between patients and their health care providers.
3. To stress the key role patients play in staying healthy by laying out rights and responsibilities for all patients and health care providers.

This Bill of Rights also applies to the insurance plans offered to federal employees. Many other health insurance plans and facilities have also adopted these values. Even Medicare and Medicaid stand by many of them.

The Eight Key Areas of the Patient's Bill of Rights:

- 1. Information Disclosure
 - a. You have the right to accurate and easily understood information about your health plan, including diagnosis, treatment plan(s) and potential prognosis. You also have a right to your health care professional and health care facility's credentials. If you speak another language, have a physical or mental disability, or just do not understand something, help should be given so you can make informed health care decisions. In turn, you have the right to provide accurate information regarding your health care history, change in symptoms & medical directives such as an advanced directive.
- 2. Choice of Providers and Plans
 - a. You have the right to choose health care providers who can give you high-quality health care when you need it.
- 3. Access to Emergency Services
 - a. You have the right to medical services if and when the need arises. Health care plans use a "prudent layperson" to determine coverage for this situation. You should be able to use these services whenever and wherever you need them, without needing to wait for authorization if you believe your health is in serious danger or you will be injured or disabled without care.
- 4. Participation in Treatment Decisions
 - a. You have the right to know your treatment options and take part in decisions about your care. You also have the right to refuse treatment or certain aspects of your care. Parents, guardians, family members, or others that you select can represent you if you cannot make your own decisions. If you leave the facility against your physician's advice, your physician is not responsible for any medical consequences that may occur.

5. Respect and Non-Discrimination

- a. You have a right to considerate, respectful care from your doctors, health plan representatives, and other health care providers that does not discriminate against you. All parties should show mutual respect. Discrimination is not tolerated as required by law.

6. Confidentiality of Health Information

- a. You have the right to talk privately with health care providers and to have your health care information protected. You also have the right to read and copy your own medical record(s). You have the right to ask that your doctor change your record if it is not correct, relevant, or complete.

7. Complaints and Appeals

- a. You have the right to a fair, fast, and objective review of any complaint you have against your health plan, doctors, hospitals or other health care personnel. This includes complaints about waiting times, operating hours, the actions of health care personnel, and the adequacy of health care facilities. 8. Patient Responsibilities

- a. Given that the health care system established patient bill of rights, patients are expected to have certain responsibilities.
 - Practice & maintain healthy habits (ex. nutritious diet, no tobacco use, exercising)
 - Be involved in your health care decisions, plans & treatments. Ask questions.
 - Disclose all pertinent information & express your wants, needs & concerns.
 - Know your coverage plan. If you have questions, contact your insurance company. For questions regarding our practice, contact the Billing Department at 303-604-5000.
